NARI WELCOMES NEW CERTIFIED REMODELING PROJECT MANAGER

(Milwaukee, WI), (July 10, 2015) – Lemel Homes Inc. is pleased to announce that Todd DeLonge has recently achieved the prestigious Certified Remodeling Project Manager status.

A Certified Remodeling Project Manager (CRPM) designation professionalizes the role of managing a remodeling project. A CRPM has oversight of every aspect of the remodeling project—project planning, communications, project cost management, quality assurance, risk management and recordkeeping. Those with this designation will be taught to work toward mastering these project components in order to drive end-customer satisfaction and profitability of remodeling projects.

Todd DeLonge said “During any construction project, the project management skills of the Project Manager are of the utmost importance from the pre-design stage through all warranty stages. The ability to see the scope of work through the eyes of any individual that is involved in the project will allow the Project Manager to have a clear and concise plan for the project that can be communicated to all parties involved. This allows the project manager to deliver a project that meets the customers’ expectations.”

The first step to attaining the Certified Remodeling Project Manager certification is to complete a qualification form, which outlines an individual's background of experience and education in remodeling. Eligibility requirements include working full time in the remodeling field for at least two years and passing a comprehensive assessment exam, Preparation for this exam takes up to 8 weeks of intensive study, offered through NARI's study group programs, to prepare them for the written examination.

“I am passionate about the construction industry and my profession. The NARI CRPM program was an excellent opportunity to spend hours in an open forum environment discussing how to better manage a construction project with other professionals from around the country. The combination of program material and current jobs to review as a group from around the country drove my passion to a new level. The new estimating, scheduling and communication technology that were discussed were eye opening along with the value of continuing education. The ability to create the best plan for a project is one thing, the ability to communicate effectively with everyone involved what that plan is, is another.” said Todd DeLonge.

NARI’s CRPM program measures skill and expertise valued not only by other professional remodelers, but by consumers as well. Highly respected by those who have achieved the designation, the CRPM program identifies professional remodelers who have undergone comprehensive review and testing in areas of business management, ethical conduct, and technical skills. In addition, they must also adhere to NARI’s strict Standards of Practice and Code of Ethics.
